Wiard Family

1062 - 1941

By

LOUIS WIARD

Eight years have passed since I first started to compile this Genealogy —thousands of letters have been written for information. (On the whole the response from members of the family has been good—some evidently can't write). Thousands of miles of personal travel has been covered in checking church records, cemeteries, family bibles, etc. My thanks to everyone who has helped collect the data published here.

Wiard

This Coat of Arms was granted by the King about 1300.

History of the Wiards in England

The early records of the Wiard (Warde, Werda, Wiarda, Wyard) family indicate that they were of English origin. In 1062 Johannes Wiard held two hides of land in Cure Wiard which Johannes Wiard, Father of Johannes, formerly held. (1 hide equals 60 to 220 acres). October 14, 1066, Johannes Wiard took part in the Battle of Hastings. His name is found on the Roll in the Great Hall of Battell Abbey that bore the name of six hundred forty-five knights, companions of William the Conqueror, who survived the Battle of Hastings. His name is also found on the list of survivors in Domesday Book. Shortly after the Battle of Hastings, William the Conqueror became King of England (December 25, 1066).

In 1175 Phillip Wiard's name was found on the Worcestershire Roll. In 1195 Phillip Wiard's wife and sons were assessed twenty-six shillings toward the 4,000 marks imposed on the Town of Caem for the ransom of King Richard.

Four undated deeds at Kyre Park were witnessed by Robert Wiard about 1200. In 1211, the name Wiard was added to the Manor of Cure in honor of the Wiards who were Lords thereof, and was afterward known as Cure Wiard.

John Wiard's coat of arms, granted about 1300, was "Argent-a-cheveron between three roses gules, bearded vert."

In 1329 John Wiard obtained leave from the King to plant and enclose his parks at Kyre and Stanton Harcourt. In 1330 John Wiard held the Manor at Woodhall and in 1346 John Wiard held the Manor of Cure Wiard.

Robert Wiard died in 1354, holding property in Oxfordshire (Stanton Harcourt), Berkshire and Worcestershire. He had no son and a daughter succeeded who married Sir John Herle and died in 1398.

Sir John Wiard, whose coat of arms indicates that he was a son of the John Wiard of Kyre, was Lord Mayor of London in 1375 and represented Warwickshire in the Parliament held in Westminster in 1379.

In 1404 John Wiard founded a Chantrie in Meridan Church in Warwickshire. Dugdale says of Meridan Church in Warwickshire, "In the south isle of the church, there is a chantrie founded by John Wiard in the 5th Henry IV (1404) (whose monument is also there) and endowed with lands to the value of 100s per annum, which John being an esquire to Thomas de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, and in the 2nd Richard II (1379) one of the knights for the shire in the Parliament then held in Westminster, had his residence in this place.

But that which belonged to this Chantrie was in rents issuing out lands lying remote from hence and amounting to 4 LI per annum (about 50s now) as was certified in 26th Henry VIII (1535) upon survey then made."

John Wiard resided at Giant's Den about 1 mile from the Church. The inscription on the monument is "His Jacet Johannes Wiard quondam armiger comitis de Warewick. Fundator istrius cantarie, cuius anime propitietur deus, Amen." (Here lies John Wiard, formerly armor bearer to the Earl of Warwick, founder of this Chantrie to whose soul may God be propitous.")

The arms on the monument are:

Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, Gu. a fess btw. 6 cross crosslets or.

Wiard. Ar. on a chev. btw. 3 roses gules, an annulet or.

Wiard impaling Bruly. Arm. on a bend gu. 3 chev. or.

Wiard impaling Wetenhall. Vert. a bend erm.

Clinton of Maxstoke. Ar. on a chief az. 2 mullets or. pirced Gu.

Bagot. Ar. on a chev. gu. btw. 3 martlets sa. a crescent or.

Walsh impaling Strange. Ar. a fess btw. 6 martlets sa. Gu. 2 Lyons passant confronte ar. crowned or.

Habbington's survey of Worcestershire gives several references to the family as follows: "In the East window of the chancel of the Church of Kyre Wiard, dexter pane—a chev. bet. three Roses persed in dyvers places, but the coullers faded—Wyard of Kyre and there fore this parish is named Kyre Wiard."

Also Arms in Doddington Church.
Arms in Martley Church, third window—second pane.
Arms in Worcester Cathedral.
Arms in Shelsley Church.
Manor of Alspath.
Manor of Wickenford.
Lands in Bedwardine.
Connection with the Blomt family.
Connection with the Mortimers.
Marriage with Walsh family.

In the record of the Walsh family is an entry: "the Family was also graced with Maches as with the daughter, (and Coheyre) of Sir John Wiard Knight."

Pepys in his diary, Vol. 2, P. 228, 229 under date of April 23, 1662, refers to visit by him to Wiard the Chyrurgeons (surgeon) at Portsmouth where he stayed over night with the Doctor and his wife.

Katherine Wiard, daughter of Nicholas Wiard, was born March 1, 1606. Christopher Wiard died in infancy August 14, 1613. Susan Wiard died March 13, 1652, at the age of 80. Nicholas and Susan Wiard were the parents of Robert Wiard.

There are numerous other records of the Wiards in England but to make a complete genealogical survey it would require months of work in England and would not necessarily add to the value of this genealogy. An endeavor has been made to list every Wiard in America, descendants of Robert Wiard.

It is evident from the surroundings in and about the Meridan Church that Shakespeare had this spot in mind when he wrote the (Forest of Arden).

JOHN WIARD (Elisha, Thomas, John, Robert) born at Farmington, May 29, 1765.

THOMAS WIARD (Matthew, Thomas, John, Robert) born in Bristol, Connecticut, near Wolcott Line, August 29, 1769, and died at East Avon, Livingston County, New York, August 11, 1837. Mr. Wiard was made Freeman at Wolcott, Connecticut, April, 1802. He was a finished blacksmith and in 1803 moved to Geneseo, New York, where he made wrought iron plow points for farmers who made the balance of the plow of wood. During that year he improved the wooden plow by covering the face of the moldboard with strips of thin iron and in 1804 moved to East Avon, purchased a large farm on which he built a shop and began making his improved plow. In 1815 he purchased castings of Jethro Wood of Cayuga County, New York, and made complete cast iron plows. In 1817, he built a one horse power foundry, made an improved model of a cast iron plow which he continued to manufacture for many years, when his shop was destroyed by fire. He immediately rebuilt, on a much larger scale, installed an upright four-horse power cast iron plow engine and boiler, added several new models, and continued to manufacture plows until his death. He was public spirited, took an active interest in politics, held the office of Justice of the Peace for several years and was elected supervisor of the Town of Avon nine times, first in 1811; last in 1835. He was a man of the strictest integrity in all his relations, public and private.

He married (1) at Wolcott, Connecticut, Miss Susan Hall, born May 1, 1781. Died at East Avon, February 13, 1824, and (2) at East Avon, New York, in 1826, Mrs. Nancy Hascall Ganson, born at Thompson, Connecticut, on August 28, 1789. She died at Le Roy, New York, in 1868.

NORMAN WIARD (William, Thomas, Matthew, Thomas, John, Robert) born at Ancaster, Canada, July 1, 1825. Died at Reading, Pennsylvania, September 11, 1896. He received his education at a classical school in Ancaster, Canada; learned the machinist trade. Was superintendent of General MacKenzie's machine shop, Brantford, Ontario, at the age of 19, where he commenced his experiment in ordnance. He was extensively engaged in the manufacture of guns during the early years of the Civil War at Trenton, New Jersey, where more than 100 men were employed. He secured patents on several of his inventions; one for the non-explosion of boilers was sold to the United States Government for use on thirty-two war vessels for $72,000. He later sold the same patent to the Japanese Government for $80,000, besides receiving 18,000 Mexican dollars as a present from the Imperial Navy of Japan. He was confidential adviser to the Government in the later years of the war and was considered the outstanding authority on ordnance at that time. Horace Greeley in a letter to Charles Sumner, dated June 1, 1866, said, "I beg to introduce to you, Mr. Norman Wiard, an ingenious inventor and skillful machinician, who has, I believe, saved the government vast sums of money by his persistent hostility to and exposures of the jobbery of the ordnance department. On this account, I feel very friendly to him." Married (1) Elizabeth Agnes Ritchie, May 19, 1848, at Ancaster. She was born at Isle of Man, December 23, 1826. Died at Detroit, Michigan, March 28, 1913. Married (2) Mary Jane Conlin at New York City, January 4, 1866. She was born at Albany, New York, July 17, 1848, and died September 29, 1927, at Spokane.

328—WINIFRED born in Washington, D.C., in 1870, and died September 6, 1940. Married Frances Lewis Clark, July 9, 1893. He was born at Bangor, Maine, June 21, 1861. Died at Santa Barbara, California, on January 16, 1914. Mr. Clark was an ardent yachtsman, Commodore of the Eastern Yacht Club in Boston for ten years and until his death. He raced abroad with the Kaiser and with King Alfonzo. In 1608, the Clark family treked from Boston to Wells and Kennebrunk in Maine (all part of the Massachusetts Colony at this time). The Maine contingent of the Massachusetts Colony appealed to Washington the year before he died for persecution against the Boston merchants to give the Wells people a living wage for their produce. This entailed great hardships on the little Colony to avoid starving; the women in Wells sold the wool linings of their mattresses to buy food and slept on bare boards. The result of their obeying Washington was a new deal for Maine, as they held out against Boston until the merchants gave them a fair price for their corn.

GEORGE WIARD (William, Thomas, Matthew, Thomas, John, Robert) born Ancaster, Canada, March 11, 1833. Died Batavia, N. Y., December 11, 1913. At the age of 14, left school to learn the trade of molding. For two years made plow castings, then made stove plate castings in the Jewett Root Foundry at Buffalo. At the age of 18, went to East Avon and made plow castings for the Plow Factory operated by Seth and Henry Wiard. In 1859, he formed a partnership with his brother Harry and they built a Plow factory at Oakfield, N. Y. This partnership was continued until he entered the Army August 1, 1862.

He enlisted as a private in the 129th Regiment of New York Infantry and when regiment was mustered into service, was commissioned as 2nd Lieutenant of Company H. On December 2, 1862, was made 1st Lieutenant. Soon after the 129th was changed to the 8th New York Heavy Artillery. His regiment saw severe service especially at Cold Harbor and Petersburg, where on June 7, 1865, he was wounded. Upon recovery he was appointed inspector of artillery for the Forts about Washington, and was commissioned Captain of Co. K 4th Heavy Artillery. He was honorably discharged from service on October 20, 1865.

Returning to East Avon, he purchased a half interest in the Wiard Plow Factory from his Uncle Matthew. The plant was burned April 1866, but immediately rebuilt and continued as the M. & G. Wiard Plow Factory until 1871, when Charles W. Hough, an army comrade, purchased the interest of Matthew Wiard and the firm became Wiard & Hough Plow Factory. In 1876 the plant was moved to Batavia and incorporated as the Wiard Plow Co.; he became its president, which position he held until his death.

He was public spirited, always taking an active part in any project that would help Batavia. Was a member of the Board of Education and its president for four years; member of the Water Commission; one of the organizers and for thirty-three years president of the Genesee County Loan Association, a most successful financial institution. He was a generous giver to churches and charitable organizations.
